This will include principles of literature searching, laboratory data assessment, critical evaluation of primary literature, research methods, methods for analysis of data, reporting and presenting research data (posters, oral presentations, written reports).

May be divided into formal lecture, seminars and project work as far as teaching, learning and assessment are concerned.